

I-Shou University Department of Nutrition Wenyu Scholarship

Dear Future Nutrition Talent:

Thanks to the teachers and elders of this department for their cultivation in the nutrition major, the younger generation will not be inferior to students from other prestigious universities in learning nutrition knowledge, and will also have the opportunity to help many people improve their diet and health; in addition, during their time studying in university, the organization of countless experimental classes and many activities has also cultivated the interpersonal interaction ability and teamwork spirit of students in this department. These are invisible growth and assets. Talk less and do more. I hope everyone can do well together. By learning, possessing and using these abilities, I firmly believe that nutrition education in Taiwan has great potential and future potential.

I am very grateful to my parents for allowing me to avoid the pressure of student loans and living expenses during my studies, so this scholarship is named after them to express my gratitude. However, I understand that not everyone has enough food and clothing and does not have to worry about money during their studies. Some students may have to worry about tuition fees, rent, living expenses, and sometimes even have to spend a lot of extra time working, which affects their studies. Therefore, in order to give back to my mother's education and encourage teachers and students in this department to continue to create a good professional teaching system and jointly cultivate Taiwan's future nutrition professionals, I have established this scholarship to provide a scholarship of NT$5,000 to one student in this department every semester.
